Choosing a summer camp is about more than filling a week on the calendar. It's about finding a place where kids feel known, challenged, and encouraged — where growth happens naturally over time. 🌿

As we look ahead to the future of camp, we wanted to share something we're prayerfully preparing for 2027.

At Camp Kerith, we're exploring a two-week residential camp experience designed for campers who already love camp and are ready for something deeper. Not more noise or packed schedules — but more time. More space for friendships to grow, confidence to build, and faith to take root in unhurried ways. 🔥

This isn't meant to replace the camp experiences families already know and love. Instead, it's an intentional next step for those who've found themselves thinking, "I wish camp didn't end so soon."

We're still in the early stages, and there's nothing to sign up for yet. For now, we simply wanted to invite you into the vision — and let you know that something thoughtful and purpose-driven is taking shape.

Because sometimes, more time changes everything. 🌲

More to come...
